The Center for Learning in Virtual Environments (CLIVE) at The University of Oregon is dedicated to research and outreach of the evidence-base emerging on the use of virtual environments for teaching and learning. The CLIVE research team is interested in discovering what works to best engage learners within virtual worlds and immersive environments. Finding appropriate design and teaching strategies within virtual environments for particular learning populations engaged with specific learning content is CLIVE's mission.

Dr. Jonathon Richter, Director